Patient Advice and Liaison Service (PALS)

We are a service to help patients and their family and friends solve their problems.

We can take action in your place to help solve problems for patients and families. We can speak with doctors, nurses and managers so you don't have to.

We want to hear what patients, their family and carers think about our service.

When you tell us what you think about the hospital, we can then improve our services.

Patient Advice and Liaison Service (PALS)

Telling us what you think, even if it is bad, does not mean we will treat you any differently.

We will ask you what you want us to do to solve your problem.

At our hospital we work hard to give you many different choices so we can solve your problem in the best way.

We can also help you get in touch with organisations which can help solve your problem.

For example, we can talk about the different services in the NHS.

What can I do if I have a problem with my treatment?

Or if I have a problem with the hospital's treatment of a family member?

The first thing to do is speak with your nurse or doctor as soon as possible.

They can look into the problem for you and find someone to help you.

You can also ask to speak with a matron or ward manager.

The matron is the head nurse responsible for your part of the hospital.

Making a complaint

If you don't want to speak with a doctor or nurse, you can contact PALS and we will try to help you with your problem.

If you want to make a complaint please write to PALS.

Or you can phone us on 01793 604031.

Who can make a complaint?

Family members or close friends can make a complaint for a patient.

In this case the hospital will need the patient to sign papers or tell PALS that they are happy for other people to view private information about them.

Patient Advice and Liaison Service (PALS)

When can I make a complaint?

You need to make a complaint in 12 months after the problem happens.

Or, you need to make a complaint in 12 months after you become aware of the problem.

When you make a complaint, we will write to you within three days saying we are aware of it and are working to solve the problem.

We will speak with you about how long we think it will take us to deal with.

We will set a date with you to solve the problem by.

Patient Advice and Liaison Service (PALS)

There are many ways PALS can help you.

However there are some things we cannot help with.

For example:

- Making claims about money you are owed because of clinical negligence.
- Getting an NHS employee in trouble at work.
- Giving you legal advice.
- Help with complaints about treatment you received from a private service.
- Giving you medical advice.

The Health Service Ombudsman

This person's job is to look into complaints about NHS treatment and service. He is not on your side or on the NHS's side. He is completely independent.

If a complaint cannot be solved with the hospital, then the ombudsman will get involved.

You can contact the Health Service Ombudsman on 0345 015 4033.

You can also visit their website:
