Information you need:

- You may eat and drink normally.
- You may experience some abdominal pain following your test. This is usually due to air in the lower bowel put in during the procedure. These symptoms usually settle after a short period.
- Occasionally you may feel light-headed for a short time.
- Do not worry if you pass a small amount of blood when you next open your bowels – this is not unusual and should stop within 24 hours. If it does not, or bleeding becomes heavier, please contact your General Practitioner so that he or she can check you over.

During your examination today you had a polypectomy (removal of polyp/s), which have been sent for testing. There is a small risk of bleeding or of a perforation of the bowel after a polypectomy.
